Looking the News Over With Col. Hugh Clark

"Will the $20 hog come back?" asks a farm journal. Our experience leads us to believe that he will—if you try to drive him the other way.

A female teacher declaims against female teachers who enter the profession merely to make enough money to buy trousseaux. We do not believe anything can be done about it unless we empower the trustees to forbid the banns.

We have noted more than once how prone delegates assembled in convention are to pass resolutions, on all sorts of subjects. Why should the Independent Labor party of Canada feel it incumbent upon them to resolve in favor of the fullest freedom for Ireland? What freedom does the Free State lack that it cannot have? Its present status the people themselves chose, though not without a civil war, the scars of which may still be seen in Dublin. It was a private war. No outsiders interfered and De Valera's republican hosts were defeated. If they wish to change their status now they are free to do so. But there is one thing they can't do. They can't make a change and still remain as they were. They can't cut loose from the empire altogether and still retain the commercial advantages that march with it. That's one thing they can't do.

Hon. Stanley Baldwin has a faculty for stating a case tersely. Asked in the House of Commons, whether the government contemplated legislation to protect investors, he replied that it was impossible by legislation to separate gentlemen anxious to get rich quick from gentlemen anxious to help them get rich quick.

It is difficult to make the public realize that a nation is just like an individual in that its credit can not be good if its expenditures exceed its revenues and that its credit cannot be improved by further borrowings. The U.S. post office last year showed a deficit of over one hundred and fifty million dollars. With a view to making up a portion of this deficit, the postage rate for first-class matter is being increased from two to three cents, although it is the carriage of other classes of mail matter which is mainly responsible for the deficit.

Some progress could be made in the elimination of unnecessary noises if we could persuade the fellows who clamor for public expenditures to cease howling about their taxes.

Irish-Americans who have started in again to shriek freedom for Ireland would be better employed in trying to free their land of the free from the overlordship of gangsters and racketeers.

In 1885, the Gladstone government was defeated, and had to resign, on a proposal to raise the income tax from six to eight pence on the pound. John Bull was not in those days the glutton for punishment that he is today.

Lord Snowden uses to the full the privilege which cabinet ministers now have of openly fighting the government of which they are members. Presiding over a free trade conference.

Local Pioneer Resident Passes to Great Beyond

It is with much regret that we announce the demise of Mrs. Alfred Roebuck which took place on Wednesday of last week at the family residence, south of Vulcan at the age of 52 years.

Mrs. Roebuck, with her husband, came to the Vulcan district in 1905 and has been interested in the development of the community, and is a real loss to local society. She leaves her husband, two sons and two daughters: Edward, Harry and Gertrude, all residing in the locality; and Mrs. J. T. Watts of Edmonton; also a grand daughter.

Deceased lady, who was born in Yorkshire, England, resided some time in New York, where she was married in 1902.

The obsequies took place on Saturday from the United Church where the large attendance testified to respect for deceased and sympathy with the surviving relatives; these were also evidenced by the many beautiful floral tributes sent to the funeral. The service at the United Church was conducted by Rev. J. N. Brunton, and to the service was contributed a vocal duet by Mrs. Maisey and Mrs. Mulloy and a solo by Mrs. A. E. White. Members of Ferrodale Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Vulcan were in attendance. The pallbearers were L. F. Dawson, Robert Robbie, A. J. Maisey, Geo. Buck, W. W. Howes and W. E. Butchart. Service was also conducted by Rev. Brunton at the Vulcan cemetery where also were performed the impressive ceremonies of the Eastern Star, which included an appropriate vocal solo by Mrs. R. E. Dadds.

CARD OF THANKS

Alfred Roebuck and family wish to thank friends and neighbors for kindness shown during Mrs. Roebuck's illness and for the beautiful flowers as tokens of esteem, sent to the funeral. We remain, your sincerely, —Alf. Roebuck and Family

Activities Shown in Lawn Tennis and Baseball Vulcan Clubs Organize for the Season

Junior Ball Club Formed at Recently Held Meeting

On Friday, April 15th, a meeting was held in the G.W.V. Club for the organization of baseball in Vulcan for the 1932 season. The meeting was called to order with Mr. Irving acting as chairman.

After considerable discussion it was decided to appoint an executive committee of five to handle the baseball problems of the town for the coming season.

A junior team was organized with Roy Green elected as manager and coach.

The formation of a senior team was left to the decision of the committee as well as the appointment of a secretary-treasurer and arrangements for the financing of both senior and junior clubs.

The committee appointed included Danny Harper, Roy Green, Bill Revere, Allan Murray and Ralph Pritchard.

It has come to the attention of those interested that a great number of the surrounding towns are organizing baseball teams this coming season. So Vulcan should have no trouble in getting good competition in both senior and junior class. A number of the younger players of the town are showing great promise and with Cliff Anderson from Beiseker, a young pitcher of considerable reputation and former resident of the town again taking up residence here, where his father, Ernest M. Anderson played ball back in 1917, will undoubtedly revive interest in the game locally. Anderson is attending the local High School.

There are a number of good players in the surrounding district who the fans would like to see in the game and among these Charlie Fulton has been out to practice and shows he has not lost any of his ability to hit and field the ball. Charlie is a first class pitcher.

So far no games have been arranged for the local diamond but the opening game will be fully advertised and nothing will please the players and those interested than to see a good turn out of supporters which will soon put Vulcan back on the map as a leading baseball town.

Mrs. Charles Ottewill, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. J. Harwood, returned to her home in Vulcan on Tuesday, from Cardston where the former has been visiting for the past while. Mrs. Harwood has been in poor health for some time, but has gained lately sufficiently to make the return visit.

This week, April 18th to April 23rd is annually known in Vulcan as "Clean Up Week," and by the evidence of practically everybody at work on their premises gives indications that it is being observed to the fullest extent. To those who have not done any cleaning or painting or repairing to beautify the town—there is still time.

A local farmer appeared before Justice of the Peace J. W. Clarkson last week and was fined $10 and costs for using his truck for commercial hauling without having the necessary license. Farmers are warned that trucks having ordinary class D license are only to be used to haul property which is the property of the owner. Any trucks doing commercial hauling requires Class B license.

C.P.R. Make Drastic Cut Local Express Rates

Commencing on April 12, the C.P.R. instituted drastic reductions in its express rates, cutting them almost two-thirds, to meet the existing truck competition. Immediate reaction has been experienced locally, and the C.P.R. express office has taken on a briskness which had not prevailed for some time past.

The new express rates are 25 cts. for 100 lbs. on fruit, vegetables, meat products, small quantities of tobacco and candy.

The new rates meet the truck rates on even terms and the rate on butter is below that of the truck service. Merchants have responded to the new rates with patronage that is highly satisfactory.

The railway has been slow to meet truck competition in the only way in which it can be met, by furnishing equal service at equal rates. In this town for instance, although it has been readily acknowledged that the C.P.R. has a prior claim on loyalty, that its employees make valuable contribution to the town, that the company is a taxpayer, and that it operates under heavy costs and restrictions which do not touch the trucks—although these indisputable features have been recognized, yet the cold "get remained that there was a spread between railway and truck charges which it would have been business folly to overlook. The truck service was immensely cheaper with delivery right to the door.

With one grand swoop the C.P.R. has bridged this advantage offering service on equal terms with its rival. And judging from the patronage of the first few days, citizens are ready in their response. The trucks have no "community" claim on town patronage. The C.P.R. undoubtedly has.

It is hoped that this cut in express service is a forerunner of other changes in the transportation system. A passenger service more flexible and inexpensive than the present ponderous system seems indicated, and should bring an upsurge in short run passenger service.

It is not expected that there will be any change in freight charges. Freight rates on long hauls could not stand much cut and this is the major freight business. It is probably not appreciated by most, that the Canadian railway freight rates are the lowest in the world. For instance the cost of wheat transportation from acre to Ft. William is 15 cents and on the American side from any point south of Coultts to Duluth is almost double.

More than 1700 carloads of feed have gone from Northern Alberta to dried out areas.

Ward Steckle, teacher of Parkland, and Nanton hockey goalie, has lost the sight of one eye from a hockey accident this winter.

Crime Does Not Pay Says "Silent" Biddle

Speaking to a small audience in the Vulcan Theatre on Thursday evening last, April 14th, on the question of "Does Crime Pay?" Silent Biddle, ex-convict, laid the blame for over crowded prisons on the lack of restraint of young men and women at home.

Mr. Biddle spoke straight from the shoulder and in course of his address pointed out that sixty-two and two-thirds of the crimes committed in the United States were by mere youngsters. Parents were too busy "jazzing it up" themselves to pay much attention to their children, consequently the youth of the nation was at a loose end. He pleaded with parents to get to know their children—to become intimate with them.

The speaker argued that the use of the lash acted as a greater deterrent than any other form of punishment and gave statistical figures to prove this. He was opposed to making penitentiaries more comfortable and gave his reasons. He claimed the majority of these crimes were committed by half-less faced boys who had not yet attained the age of 20.

The second part of the lecture was taken up by a number of very interesting lantern-slides depicting prison life.

In concluding his address, Mr. Biddle appealed for the co-operation of parents in putting a stop to crime, and said: "Does crime pay? No, it never has and never will."

Good Deeds W.I. Hold Regular Meeting

Good Deeds W. I. met at the home of Mrs. Croucher, April 14th with twenty present. The president, Mrs. Lucas occupied the chair. The meeting was opened with a song "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," followed by the flag salute and creed. Minutes of the March meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. Parsons were read and approved.

The annual report of the Maple Leaf Girls' Club was read by Mrs. J. Hutton in the absence of the Club secretary. They report a very successful year socially and financially.

Reports of Good Deeds' Day at three schools, Boyne, Twin Coulee and Harvey were given by Mrs. Galbraith, Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. C. Smith. Mrs. T. Shaw was appointed to interview Miss Macleod of the Vulcan Municipal Hospital as to what our Institute could best do for the hospital nursery.

The meeting voted $5 to the Vulcan Rest Room. A bake sale held in Vulcan recently brought $4.60.

An interesting article on "Canadian Industries" sent by Mrs. Lilly and read by Mrs. Galbraith was very much enjoyed. Mrs. Lilly offers a prize to the member turning in the most "Made in Canada" labels during the year. An apron donated by Mrs. Lilly was raffled and won by Mrs. H. Hungerbuhler.

Mrs. W. Riley put on a contest and Mrs. H. Macmasters had the honor of being the quickest thinker.

The Roll Call, "Town or Country Life and Why?" showed a preference for country life in spite of a south-west wind blowing clouds of dust across the fields.

The next meeting will be exchange day and sale of plants at the home of Mrs. D. H. Galbraith, May 12th.

Banquet at Queenstown by Canadian Legion

The banquet of the Canadian Legion held in the Queenstown community hall on Friday evening, April 15th was a great success. The banquet was given for all former members of the British, Canadian or American armies by the Queenstown and Milo members of the Canadian branch No. 13 of the Canadian Legion of The British Empire Service League. Using the main auditorium of the hall as a banquet room, the veterans had set out an enormous U-shaped table and on this were placed covers for the expected guests. Vases of flowers added to the festive note of the occasion. The hall was decorated with flags and red, white and blue streamers. The ladies had provided a bewildering array of good things to eat, beginning with a course of roast fowl and ending with delicious home made ice cream. A banquet, he it said no less provocative of the appetite than satisfactory to the criticalness of the censorious palate—and to this feast were veterans from Gleichen and some from other points, and veterans of Queenstown and Milo districts and their wives had turned out in masse.

Veterans of the Imperial, American and Canadian armies were present. Lieut. Colonel A. B. Lewis of Gleichen, Officer Commanding 19th Field Brigade Canadian Artillery, President of the Gleichen Branch of the Legion occupied a position of honor as master of ceremonies. Comrade George Burke asked the blessing, and it was followed by a silent toast to fallen comrades. In opening the short programme which consisted of serious and witty speeches and musical numbers, the assembled company drank a toast to the King. Colonel Lewis formally welcomed the guests, mentioning that the Legion was open for membership by any soldier of any British war, and called attention to the fact that there was present a veteran of the Boer War. He proposed a toast to the ladies, which was drunk with enthusiasm, and Mrs. Wm. Osler of Queenstown, wife of the vice-president of the Gleichen branch, replied, thanking the company on behalf of the ladies. Mr. H. B. Nelson was then called on and proposed a toast to visiting members from Gleichen and other points and non-members of the Legion present. Mr. Steve Williams replied in humorous vein.

Comrade R. Dodgson, of Gleichen sang two songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Egglese, also of Gleichen, and was heartily applauded.

Colonel Lewis called on Mr. E. J. Cann, Queenstown, a veteran of the Riel Rebellion of 1885. Mr. Cann gave an account of the fighting in that historic clash with the Indians and half breeds. Each soldier received the sum of 50¢ per day as wages, and was rewarded for his services by a grant of 320 acres of land.

With Mr. Egglese at the piano, a sing-song followed. This included the old marching songs: "Boys of the Old Brigade"; "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" and "Mademoiselle from Armentieres."

Mr. Cann rendered two piano solos and these numbers were greatly enjoyed.

Local members of the Legion wish to express their gratitude to Mr. Lawther who gave a great deal of assistance and help in preliminary arrangements and throughout the dance, thereby contributing in no small way to the success of the evening. Their

OTTAWA IN JUNE

It is difficult to realize the vastness of the possibilities of the Imperial Conference, which will be held in Ottawa in June. The strongest delegation which England can assemble will be present, and this indicates how important the Conference is in the eyes of the British Parliament.

For the first time in eighty six years Britain has placed herself in a position where she can grant fiscal favors to reciprocating nations.

It is on this basis that the Conference will build. Delegates are confined to British colonies and dominions, but following this inter-Empire conference is to come another. In this later gathering Britain will confer with other low tariff countries such as Denmark, Scandinavia and Holland. At this meeting preferred tariff agreements will be discussed. Great nations may be invited to join later on, and a great world circle of mutually lowered tariffs may be brought into being.

The optimists hope for freer trade relations, starting naturally with inter Empire trade. But whether any real policy will develop from the Conference is dependent on the attitude of national representatives. It will be a process of bargaining, and no one nation need expect to benefit, without making concessions.

British representatives will not concede privileges to Canada without some return that will justify the concessions. Moreover they have been definitely instructed by British manufacturers to go fully into the matter of United States factories operating branches in Canada. The British business man is not disposed to make any sacrifices which will benefit particularly American factories via Canadian branches.

It has been carefully noted in Britain that the advent of U.S. factories into Canada has definitely affected the Australian-Canadian treaty of last year. It was shown that many American manufacturers were getting their goods into Australia merely by assembling and packing in Canada. The weakness of the treaty did not bring the full value intended to Canada or Canadian factories, and certainly affected the value of British preferences.

This gives only one indication of the many phases and angles which are being studied in Britain. Canadians may rest assured that the formidable array of ability assembled at Ottawa in June, will be well worth watching, and the best that Canada can produce in brains, will be required to arrive at a mutually profitable bargain. The Conference is of tremendous importance to Western Canada in its bearing on prairie wheat. But if Britain is to solve this Canadian problem, Canada must be prepared to sacrifice something in return.

TREES MAKE HOMES

A hint of green is tinging the countryside, and with this promise of coming verdure, comes the impulse for tree planting and gardening. Again we are experiencing a year when there is no great visible profit in the products of the soil, but there is a profit in the planting of trees and shrubs. It profits the spirit of man, which responds to beautiful surroundings. A home, no matter how humble, can be given personality and attraction if it is encircled by the protecting arms of trees. It takes on a cared for, lived in look which endures perennially. Lata and plaster and lumber may deteriorate and collapse, but trees are a living testimony of someone's love of beauty.

In this town and district, much has been done in the past few years in this form of beautification. Even the trees planted within the past two years are shooting upward, assuming shape and size. We are fortunately situated to secure both trees and shrubs with no cost but the labor of transplanting. The Town Council has fostered a nursery which has now developed so that trees may be secured from it by any citizen.

The tree habit grows with encouragement and the habit once formed can not be broken. Those who revisit the old homes of Eastern Canada, wonder anew at the reverence in which trees are held. Although every foot of land is precious, an old oak, beech or elm will stand in the centre of a field for generations. The generations will plough and harvest round its roots, guarding it as carefully as they would guard some old member of the family. It perpetuates the spirit of the first owner of the homestead. What is planted in this country today will mean much to our grandchildren.

Nothing so binds a family to the home as trees and pleasant surroundings. Crops come off yearly. Their value rises and falls. Animals are at the best transient. But trees are permanent settlers.

BRITISH EXAMPLE

Great Britain has proved an example and a reproach to other nations. She has announced a surplus in the fiscal year just opened, which will enable the Chancellor of the Exchequer to reduce taxation.

A year ago on the verge of National bankruptcy, she has rallied her forces, and this year has reduced her French credit by 13,000,000 pounds; and the American credit by 30,000,000 pounds. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has announced that there will be complete repayment of what Britain owes by the end of August.

Only the indomitable will of a people, supporting statesmen in whom they have faith, could have accomplished this supreme task. British readiness to meet "the bright face of danger" is proverbial. The close woven fabric of her national life gives a stability and a unity of purpose that newer nations lack. At heavy personal sacrifice every Britisher rallied to the help of the government in payment of taxes, and the result has surpassed expectations. The growth of unemployment has been arrested. Cotton and steel industries are reviving substantially, and there is every sign that the country on the whole is advancing toward the solid prosperity of other days.

It is an example which Canada views with admiration, but without any great indication of following. For one thing, Canada is an immensely scattered country with a great diversity of industries and interests. That which benefits one element, is apt to penalize another. It would require a very superior type of legislation to work uniformly for the benefit of all. The Canada of today is made up of many nationalities, who still carry a hangover of other lands, and are good citizens, without being imbued with a devotion to this country, such as characterizes an older civilization. And yet it is easily conceivable that Canadians might rally to a national call, accept personal sacrifices and respond even as the British people have responded, if they could be convinced that Canadian leaders were dominated solely by solicitude for their country, and had a clear-cut policy that would lead the people out of the wilderness of unemployment and depression. This is the disability under which Canada suffers. Her people rightly or wrongly, are too often at crosspurposes with her leaders. Added to their other difficulties, few Canadian statesmen have been able to command a whole-hearted confidence in their policies, and on the other hand, the people have grown doubtful that Ottawa governments have always kept before them the interests of the people. An abundance of faith is necessary before any nation can accomplish what Great Britain has accomplished.

EFFICIENCY NOT ALL

A young man who has had much experience in small town butcher shops, told recently of taking a position in one of these huge, highpowered departmental stores which are cutting the ground from under the small merchant. His work was in the meat department, where wonderful bargains were offered the public and meat was very cheap. But to make these cut prices possible, the meat was weighed to an ounce before being turned over to the clerks of the department, and if their returns varied in the slightest from the amount credited to them, they were penalized. They had to measure to the hairbreadth, with a supervisor on hand to see how they were going about it. The young man, used to the comparatively free and easy methods of small town shops, became thoroughly disgusted and started out in search of some less efficient job where life is mellow.

One hears from time to time, similar stories of the efficiency of big business. Cheap prices are made possible partly by large scale operation and big turnover, and partly by a rigid system of checking employees. Penalties under some conditions may eat the heart out of the pay cheque and too often the scale of pay is very low.

The whole system and machinery of a huge institution is necessarily very different from that prevailing in a small store. People are glad to avail themselves of the big store bargains, handed to them by impersonal methods. They have little interest in the automatons who serve them. But if a town merchant were to adopt the same methods, he would become a very unpopular man. The town shop almost invariably boasts an atmosphere of friendliness and informality. The clerks are as interested in the business as the owner, and require no rigid system of supervision and checking. They have a fairly free hand to deal with the different customers according to individual whims and fancies. The morale of the store is built on co-operation and good will between owner and clerk, and it is this atmosphere which many people enjoy. Shopping in a small town is in the nature of a social pilgrimage, with the actual purchasing only one element.

It is possible that small store prices cannot be brought always to the level of the huge department stores. But on the other hand, most merchants and most clerks have a friendly habit of occasionally throwing in a little extra for the good customer. It may not be an efficient system, but it provides a cheerful and generous note. The genial informal atmosphere of the small town store would be lacking if high-powered business methods prevailed and in the minds of many people this atmosphere is much more precious than breath-taking bargains.

EVENING DRAWS ON

"Both the millionaires who took their lives were bachelors," remarked the editor of the Meaford Mirror, packing much significance into two lines. The man whose life does not branch out, whose course of interest flows along a single stem, must find it ever more difficult as the years go by to find zest in what he does. The average man marries, with the result that his self-importance is reduced by half; then children come, and he feels his real consequence in the world multiplied. At about the time he discovers that he is not going to conquer the world he gets a new slant on the thing and is glad of his limitations, because he feels that his children are going to do bigger things that he had hoped to do. And, as he gets a little older; even if his family is not quite accomplishing everything he hoped for, along come grandchildren of such promise, surely as no man ever had before. So for marrying men life is cushioned all the way along. Until thirty or even later a young married man lives in dreams of what he is going to do in the world; by the time he is forty or so his dreams begin to centre in his unequalled children; by the time he is sixty his unparalleled grandchildren engross him. The bachelor has one life. The married man has three. You can't down a man who has three goes at the game—his own, his son's, his grandsons. He probably dies unconquered in his eighties with his ardent hopes set on a great-grandson. It is a good thing for an elderly man to have grandchildren with the measles or a grandson with chickenpox, or a grandson saving his money with much self-denial in order to buy a pup of his own with his own money—These things weave an elderly man into the very web of current life and he has no time to brood on the thought that his work is done. So far from being bored he can see in excited young faces proof that he is relied upon as a source of invention, dependable beneficence, with the imagination of a child and the powers of a magician. He can produce from his overcoat pocket almost anything. And it does not need to be much in order to be wonderful.—Toronto Star Weekly.

COMMUNITY DOCTOR

All over Canada, attention is being called to the Cardston experiment in ensuring medical services for that community. It is worthy of scrutiny, particularly on the part of any municipal district or substantial area which finds itself without a doctor. Some weeks have elapsed since the Cardston scheme became operative and according to all report it has given satisfaction both to doctors and the contributing families. Also more recruits are being added steadily in groups. An executive board was named to handle agreements, finances, etc. For the sum of $25.00 cash, each contributing family is ensured of ordinary medical attendance for the term of a year.

The scheme did not become an actuality until a sufficient number of cash signers had been secured to guarantee the two doctors concerned, a definite minimum annual salary. The amount now in the hands of the board exceeds by a satisfactory amount that minimum sum, and is growing. From the standpoint of the doctors, the hazards of collection are removed. They are doing the same work as ever, but they at least are secure in an income, small but certain. From the standpoint of the signers, they have already secured services which total in value about $25.00 and little more than a month gone by.

URGES EXCHANGE BUSINESS VISITS

The London Times Advises Brit. and
Can. Business Men to Meet Before Conference

That a representative group of Canadian business men who hope to extend trade with Britain should visit
this country before the Ottawa Imperial conference and that an equally representative party of British businessmen should tour Canada and reach understandings that would form a basis for tariff proposals, was a suggestion forcibly argued by the Times' editorially.

The newspaper pointed out that the object of the Ottawa gathering was to stimulate trade both ways and that this could only be done if there was the widest interchange of opinion between Canadian producers and Old Country businessmen.

"There must be very few Englishmen
these days," said the Times "so foolish as to imagine that Canadians are going to buy British goods out of sentimental loyalty to the Empire unless they get value for their money, or are going to the trouble to encourage British trade unless, by doing so, they are convinced they will be helping Canada also. And for Canada's own sake as well as for Britain's it must be hoped there are few Canadians who imagine that Canada by pursuing a policy of economic isolation can prosper or that she can maintain her market in this country
without buying British goods in exchange."

LIVESTOCK REGISTRATIONS

The annual report of the federal Minister of Agriculture contains an interesting reference to the number of certificates of registration issued for 951 horses, of which 249 were thoroughbred, 293 Clydesdales, 164 Percherons, and 135 standard bred. A total of 19,222 registrations were certified for cattle, the Shorthorn breed leading with 6,087, Ayrshires totalled 4,780, Jerseys 3,440, and Herefords 2,673. A total of 10,617
certificates were issued for sheep, and 6,781 for swine. The other four groups under national live stock registration include poultry, with a total of 1,608; foxes 88,390; dogs to the number of 4,158; and 39 goats.

STANLEY BALDWIN WALTER RUNCIMAN

At Imperial Conference Best Brains
of Britain Will Try to Strike Reasonable Bargain

The British delegation to arrive in Ottawa for the Imperial Conference
are Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Lord Hailsam, Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lester. These are from the Conservative wing. Liberals will have the Hon. Walter Runciman and the Laborites, Hon. J. H. Thomas.

The Financial Post this week gives character sketches of Hon. Stanley Baldwin and Hon. Walter Runciman.

Mr. Baldwin is the son of a successful iron master. His mother was the daughter of a Scottish clergyman,
her sisters marrying Sir E. Poynter, Sir E. Burne-Jones and the father of Rudyard Kipling. This artistic connection coupled with the business instincts of the iron master, have created a brilliant personality in Mr.
Baldwin.

In 1922 he was made Chancellor of the Exchequer, under Bonar Law's Conservative administration, and upon Bonar Law's retirement, succeeded to the Premiership.

Convinced of the need of a tariff policy, he led his party in a disastrous election in which the first Labor government came into power. In less than a year another election put Baldwin again in the saddle. He was regarded generally as a safe, cautious mover along progressive paths. In 1929 he was again ousted, with MacDonald forming a cabinet without a clear majority.

Last year Baldwin had the Premier ship within his grasp when he elected to join forces with MacDonald for a National Ministry.

Today, with MacDonald suffering from eye trouble, Baldwin is practically the leader of government with the dominant voice in all policies.
Baldwin has from the first been a believer in Imperial Preference, urging the deepening of inter-Imperial trade.
The first step has been achieved in the abandonment of free trade.

He has, however, the temperament
of conciliator and mediator, and frequently fills the role of peacemaker. He is said to be naturally indolent with little love of administrative detail.
What actual part he will play in tariff making is uncertain.

Walter Runciman
While Mr. Baldwin will do the felicitous end of the Conference, it will be Neville Chamberlain and Walter Runciman who will be the actual tariff bargainers. On Runciman's shoulder will fall the main burden.

His family is of Scottish descent,
but it was in the north of England
that family fortunes were established through Sir Walter Runciman his father, a shipowner who achieved a baronetcy. Born in 1870, he early decided on a political career, and before 30 had entered politics. In 1899
he was elected on a Liberal ticket beating that other promising young man Winston Churchill.

He lost his seat shortly after and re-entered parliament in 1902. He was under-secretary under Campbell Bannerman in 1905 and a cabinet minister in 1908. Before the war he was Minister of Agriculture and Board of Trade, and in earlier war years upheld the Asquith ministry. In 1916, when Lloyd George smashed the coalition and came to the top, Runciman withdrew, nursing his never-dying dislike of Lloyd George.

In 1924, he again returned to Parliament
as a well-informed, brilliant debater. He has been intensely independent declining connection with Lloyd George, criticizing alike Tory protection and Laborite socialism.

He has had tremendous responsibilities thrust on him in restoring corporations and private business all over Britain, and is rated the best combination of business and political brains in Britain. He has become converted to the view that free imports
in a big protection word is ruinous, and is committed to the plan of a revenue tariff and pledged to keep an open mind about the fiscal question.
He has been firm against extreme protectionists and has won many doubting free traders. He will be matched in the "quid pro quo" of the Imperial Conference against Premier Bennett.

PROGNOSTICATES FROM HEAVENS

The Moon, Mercury, Neptune, Venus
and Saturn Tell the Future

This a.m. while it was yet night I arose to study the stars and prognosticate
next week's happenings.

Next week will not be fortunate for married men, but about the same as the other 358 days. Prominent men may be sued for calling someone
"cutie."

Roughly speaking your banker is apt to be nasty and ask you to at least pay storage on your promissory notes. Married women should not encourage admirers, not even their husbands,
for friendliness may be misinterpreted.

Sirus, the dog star, is waning and citizens will be forced to pay their dog taxes. The rich will get richer and the poor will buy a new car.
Children born next week will either be male or female, and should be put immediately on a milk diet.

In Plades there is a menacing sign for the flapper. Doctors will continue to write prescriptions for people's imaginary complaints. Caution should be exercised. Don't tell the girl in the movies she ought to be in the movies.
Get a new line. Theatres will flourish and the public will see a two-bit movie anywhere for 75 cents.

Uranus is out trailing the guy who wrote that "prosperity is just around the corner." Many automobiles will be sold for taxes and others will be concealed in the next province. And, according to our patient research, the whole solar system seems to be on the verge of a scandal.

Now, this high pressure calculation is so exhausting that I cannot tell off-hand how much is two times four.
Can you? Fan me somebody, with a little scotch!—G. Haw.—Clareholm

CAREFUL WITH HATCHING EGGS

This is the time of the year when the farmer with a good poultry flock finds hatching eggs in big demand.

There are some points in the handling of hatching eggs which may appropriately be referred to at this time. Too much care can not be exercised in culling eggs which are intended for hatching use. A metal sieve should not be used because the slightest contact with a hard surface may cause a crack or crack in the shell. Straw or burlap gives protection.
There should be plenty of nests available to the hens, from 12 to 15 nests per 100 birds. When culled, hatching eggs should be kept in a cool
room, they should not be kept too warm, germ growth starts at a temperature of 69 degrees and the room in which the eggs are kept until delivered to the hatchery should not be more than 50 to 60 degrees.
Eggs should be delivered to the hatchery
as soon after they are collected as possible.

The new gas tax (now 7 cts. a gallon)
in B.C. provides no exemptions.

Principals in Heroic Sea Rescue

On the afternoon of Saturday, March 12, there was enacted off Halifax a true drama of the sea, replete with all the best traditions of "those who go down to the sea in ships." The salvage ship Reindeer, herself on the way to aid a vessel in distress, became a wreck and sent out an S.O.S., which was picked up by the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm, bound from Liverpool to Halifax. Captain A. Rothwell, her commander, at once altered course and raced to the sinking Reindeer. Within two miles, volunteers were called for and a lifeboat, under command of Second Officer H. S. Knight, battled with wind and high seas for nearly four hours to reach the stricken ship. Captain Rothwell handled the Montcalm so as to make a lee for the rescuers and kept oil going in their track. Captain Featherstone and his crew of 27, to say nothing of a police dog, were safely taken off and the return trip to the Montcalm made in about 15 minutes, thanks to the wind. The shipwreck victims were given a rousing welcome and their rescuers cheered to the echo by the Montcalm's passengers, who witnessed the entire event. Later, a purse was taken up for the volunteers and a silver cigarette case presented to Second Officer Knight. A telegram was also sent to E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, commending the rescue work. The upper picture shows the crew of the Reindeer, with Captain Rothwell and Second Officer Knight, in uniform. Beside Captain Rothwell is Captain Featherstone. Lower picture shows the brave men who manned the Montcalm's lifeboat. In Seamen J. Carr; H. Addicott; L. Page; H. Pearce;
the foreground are Second Officer Knight and Captain J.
Lawry and W. Hughes; Boatswain W. Doyle and Rothwell. Left to right from top are: Able-Bodied J. Smythe, back to camera.

GREAT BEAR LAKE HOLDS ATTENTION

Dr. A. E. Cameron, professor of mining at the University of Alberta proclaims amazing possibilities in the development of the Great Bear Lake district. Radium, gold, silver, base metals and even oil are all to be found there he says.

Preliminary exploration had revealed 2,000 tons of pitchblende at Great Bear Lake containing probably 200 grams of radium.

"The entire output of radium in the world, up to the present, has only been 600 grams so that the Great Bear Lake deposits may considerably increase the world's supply of this valuable metal," Dr. Cameron said.

As the process of producing radium from pitchblende requires huge quantities of chemicals derived from salt, Dr. Cameron forecast that the great salt deposits at Fort McMurray might be put to a very useful purpose by virtue of the establishment of a radium plant at that community.

Silver values uncovered at Great Bear Lake were staggering to the imagination, Dr. Cameron declared. The famous silver deposits which created the activity at Cobalt, Ontario, only covered four square miles. The silver deposits at Great Bear Lake covered 70 square miles—enough to make many Cobalts.

Gold values had been revealed at Great Bear Lake assaying $22.50 to the ton, Dr. Cameron stated. This, he said, was a remarkable showing when it was taken into consideration that the silver ore from the famous Hollinger mine only assayed about $10 to the ton.

"There is little doubt but that in the near future one of Canada's greatest metallic mineral fields will come into active production, and this in spite of the very great handicaps of practically no transportation to the markets for these metals."

Dr. Cameron declared that there were excellent chances of obtaining oil in certain sections near Great Bear Lake.

"Taken as a whole the large areas lying east of the MacKenzie River valley are so situated with respect to the crustal disturbances further west that there should be suitable oil structures at a number of places," he said. "Drilling depths should not be great, perhaps a maximum of 3,000 feet. Mining development at Great Bear Lake will undoubtedly produce a renewed interest in the petroleum possibilities and the two should go together in the economic development of these hitherto undeveloped portions of Canada."

ence, he attacked the protectionist policy of the government and urged the conference to organize for the next elections. The rejected formula of cabinet solidarity was better than this, although it too was not without weaknesses. In 1918, the late Lord Curzon was leader of the government in the House of Lords. He was also president of the anti-suffrage league, organized to oppose the extension of the election franchise to women. When the bill granting women suffrage came before the House of Lords, he made a masterly speech against it and then gave a masterly vote for it. He had, however, this justification—the bill had already passed in the House of Commons by a vote of 385 to 55. If the House of Commons, which alone was affected by the bill, was so pleased with the innovation, why should the lords object? Curzon's conduct, however, was generally criticized as an evasion, if not a breach of the century-old formula that ministers had to talk alike in public no matter what they thought privately. If he had backed his speech with his vote he would have had to resign. Under the new ruling he could have written, spoken, voted and organized against the government and still retained the seals of office.

As a preliminary measure of disarmament let's abolish the revolver. What good is it anyway? If no one else had it, the public would not need it.

GREAT BRITAIN TELLS THE WORLD

Never be Down Hearted is the Staunch Maxim of Centuries of History

The Lethbridge Herald in editorial comment makes the following appreciative comment on Great Britain's valiant attitude to her responsibilities:

"Great Britain has surprised the financial world by wiping out her indebtedness to the United States of $200,000,000 four months before maturity. This has brought forth the comment of New York bankers that the repayment sets something of a record in international finance, considering that about six months ago the finances of British Government were shown to a point where a complete breakdown seemed possible."

"London is fast recovering the position it has held as the international financial centre. What Great Britain has achieved financially, in the face of financial adversity, is a hopeful sign not merely to Great Britain herself but to the civilized world. Where there is a determination, coupled with willingness, adverse circumstances, can be overcome."

"As the countries of the world go Great Britain is a long-established country. She has gone through a great deal of experience. She has had her times of prosperity and her times of adversity. As compared to nations that are young, Great Britain has traditionally learned to know adversity, and with this knowledge has learned how to overcome it. This in some measure explains how Great Britain meets critical situations. It is a case of traditional training."

"In comparison with Great Britain, Canada and the United States in the comparative short period of their existence as national countries, have not known the real meaning of what are times which had in them the outlook of blue ruin. They have not faced situations which Great Britain has had to face in the long centuries in which Great Britain has existed. So in the people of Great Britain we have a people who have been trained, by what has been their experiences in ups and downs of centuries, how to meet and stand up against adversity without taking a hopeless outlook on things. So what Great Britain has achieved in the present day is full of encouragement both to Canada and other nations in showing that it will never do to abandon hope, but with that quiet determination, and even cheerfulness, face emergencies as they come undaunted, with the sure hope that they can be overcome provided there is the spirit existing to meet and overcome these difficulties."

"It never pays to be downhearted is what Great Britain proclaims today. This is a salutary lesson just at this time. It is a lesson which we should learn, and by so doing triumph over what are temporary difficulties with that spirit which has caused Great Britain to overcome them."

A fight fan who had paid good money to see Dempsey in action was indignant because that was the final event of the night. "Why don't they have the main bout first and the preliminaries after?" he said.

Have Your Choice of Fine Home and Surroundings for Every Family or Finance Nice Big War

A German mathematician has made calculations showing that during the Great War no less than 11,000,000 men were killed; 19,000,000 were mutilated; and the total cost of the war reached the colossal total of $500,000,000. With this amount it would have been possible to present every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia with a $2,500 house in a five-acre plot with $1,250 worth of furniture; and in addition a hospital, university and school, including the salaries of teachers, nurses, doctors and professors, could have been provided for every group of 20,000 families. Surely war is madness! What are we the better for it all? Surely it is time the race adopted some better way of settling its disputes than this barbarous and costly method for which even now we are paying most heavy toll, and will continue to do so for many years.

Legion Banquet Success

thanks are also due to Mr. A. E. Miller and to all others who so kindly assisted the committee in charge in their preparations and in other ways.

The dance after the banquet under the auspices of the Legion proved immensely popular. A crowd estimated at about 250 crowded the dance floor, although not uncomfortably, and quadrilles, waltzes, two steps, schottisches polkas and one steps followed each other to the accompaniment of music by the Queenstown old time orchestra, who interspersed the program liberally with the more modern fox trot.

Norman McCord was a very acceptable caller for the quadrilles and in consequence most of this duty fell on him, and the variety he has at his command would have been creditable even in the days when every second dance or more was a "square." During the dance Lieut.-Col. Lewis made an appeal to all ex-service men who had not already joined the Legion to do so, as united action was the only means of getting effective results. A very fine lunch was served at midnight—the dancers were fortunate in that the guests of the banquet had not eaten up all the turkey and ice cream. Dancing continued merrily until 3 p.m. and when the strains of "Home Sweet Home" rang out the only regret was that the evening was ended.
